

If a prospective student has an Associates Degree from an accredited college, they are automatically waived from having to make up additional General Education classes; however, they do need to have a total of 120 units or more for graduation from Concordia. If they are short of meeting the 120 with the transferable units, and the core of the program/major at Concordia, they can make these up either by taking elective classes or choosing from the articulated general education courses.