

"Charles Vittor . . . Miss Elizabeth Juul." Editorials.

The G 28 September 1966: 2.

* * *

PHILOSOPHY DEPT.—Charles Vittor, a former GC graduate ordered some Aescluylus for his class. When the books finally arrived he had to return them — they were printed in the original Greek . . . having troubles with Aristotle is Miss Elizabeth Juul, who sent to duplicating a section of Aristotle writings in English only to have it returned to her—reason: she didn't have permission to reprint it. Aristotle died in 32 B.C.