G'mont offers reading of young poets

Grossmont College will open a fall program of poetry readings by young poets at 3 p.m. Wednesday, October 30 in the Lewis F. Smith Learning Resource Center, 8800 Grossmont College Dr., El Cajon.

Poetry will be read by Phillip Levine.

According to Lloyd Norwood, Grossmont College English instructor and a coordinator for the young poets series, Levine is a leading poet in the United States. His work has appeared in most of the leading periodicals of poetry, such as Harper's, Atlantic, New Yorker, New American Review, as well as over 20 anthologies.

Other poets scheduled to appear in the Fall program are Ai, Nov. 13; Michael McClure, Nov. 20 and Diane Wakoski on Dec. 4.
